You can explore world landmarks and natural wonders, and experience places like museums, arenas, restaurants, and small businesses with Street View in both Google Maps and Google Earth.

You can find street-level imagery taken at different times from the Street View archives and other contributors. For example, you can explore how your neighborhood has changed over time.

To report outdated imagery, fill out the request information on this form. Your feedback guides us to determine where imagery updates are most important. Keep in mind that Google can"t commit to a specific timeline for updates.

Looking to explore the world from the comfort of your home? Google Maps Street View is a fantastic tool that allows you to do just that! With just a few clicks, you can virtually walk the streets of Paris, hike the Grand Canyon, or visit the Great Wall of China. It's simple, quick, and incredibly fun. Ready to start your virtual adventure? Let's dive in!

Before we jump into the step-by-step process, let's understand what we're about to do. Street View is a feature in Google Maps that provides panoramic views of many streets in the world. You can navigate through these images to take a virtual tour of different locations. Here's how to access it:

Google Maps is accessible through any web browser or by downloading the app on your smartphone. Once you've opened the app or website, you'll see a map of the world that you can navigate by clicking and dragging.

You can search for a specific address, a landmark, or even a city. Once you've entered your search, Google Maps will zoom into the location you've chosen.

The yellow man icon, affectionately known as "Pegman," is your key to entering Street View. Blue lines and dots represent streets and locations that have Street View imagery available.

You can explore the area as if you were walking down the street. Clicking on arrows allows you to move forward, while dragging the screen lets you look around 360 degrees.
